Military History Credential: Cold War 2.0

In honor of Norwich's deep military roots (200 years' worth), we are especially proud to offer this military history credential, designed to provide history hobbyists and history teachers with a renewed and enriched understanding of the subjects they study and teach. The first course, "Small Wars Today," covers Chinese, Russian, and non-state Ways of War, as well as the impact of Colonialism on today's world, with a focus on the British experience in the American Revolution. The second course, "A Brief History," provides a concise history of the Cold War 1.0 (NATO/USA vs. Warsaw Pact/USSR) and helps students view historical events in their respective contexts. The final course, "A Current Analysis," examines the Peer and Near Peer Protagonists in the Baltic, Crimea, and Ukraine, providing insights into generational warfare in 2024. Take one course, or take all three.
